Overview

The Journal for Distinguished Language Studies (JDLS), founded by the Coalition of Distinguished Language Centers under the direction of Dr. Betty Lou Leaver and Boris Shekhtman in 2002 is a refereed volume and the only journal to focus exclusively on the highest levels of language achievement, that is, native-like or near-native. This level is labeled Distinguished by the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL), Level 4/Advanced Professional Proficiency by the Interagency Language Roundtable (ILR), and also Level 4 as part of the Standardized Agreement (STANAG) 6001 of NATO's Bureau of International Language Coordination (BILC). Descriptions can be found at the ACTFL, ILR, and BILC websites.

The purpose of this journal is to create a robust international movement to promote and support language learning to the near-native level of proficiency. The editors are seeking contributions in the areas of theory, research, and applications. The journal typically has published a balance of articles in all three categories. Published papers will thus develop theory, share applications that work (based on the experience of those who teach that level), report on the research conducted and needed for proper evaluation and assessment of theory and application, and share references.

We particularly welcome articles on the following areas:

- current status of Level 4 proficiency research in each of the four skill areas;
- teaching methods to/at/above Level 4 proficiency in each of the four skill areas;
- the role of culture in achieving Level 4 proficiency in each of the four skill areas;
- assessment to/at/above Level 4 proficiency in each of the four skill areas; and
- book reviews..

Submissions should represent original work. They should not have been previously published elsewhere nor be currently submitted to another journal or collected volume.

Submission Process and Deadlines

1. Please submit (5,000-8,000 Word doc.) articles by August 31, 2021. Include paper title (10 words max.), abstract (200-250 words max.), affiliation, and one blind copy (omitting the name and institutional affiliation of the author at the beginning of the article). Blinded articles will be sent to reviewers.
2. Use Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, Seventh Edition.
3. Because journal articles are now English only, please ensure that a native speaker/proficient writer proofreads prior to submission so peer review can focus on content. The editors reserve the right to return, without review, any articles that are not clear, accurate, or concise (i.e. Level 4 writing proficiency).
4. We expect to receive reviewers' recommendations by October 15, 2021, immediately after which we will let potential contributors know whether the manuscript has been accepted, needs revision, or has been rejected. We will need to receive revised manuscripts no later than November 30, 2021.
5. Publication is anticipated for December 2021, with galleys available for proofreading in November.
6. Potential authors can contact the editors in advance with any questions.
